Dear Traders,

This is a little update, after the last up push of the S&P500.

If you look at the update of August 3, you can see that a new down push began after August 8, as we did forecast. The S&P500 reached area 2802-2810 Index Points, which is a very important area, as you know; well, we saw the S&P500 did not have the power to move under it, and a new, unexpected, up push began, bringing the S&P500 to hit new highs. I have missed the last up push, of course. I have closed my last LONG position at 2842 points, At the beginning of August.

Of course, we are in a real world, and I am aware I can miss some swings, otherwise I would be the richest guy in the world. Here, I just want to tell you that I am working with area 2910 points now. I believe this area has a strong energy, and it can stop the uptrend for a while and even more. If I see a continuation of the uptrend above it, I will remain FLAT. The PFS model, as you can see, shows weakness from the last days of August, and that is what I am expecting to see now, after the S&P500 failed to push lower from the top of August 8.

ATTENTION! The pattern of the uptrend of the last weeks is evidently an ascending parabolic, a dangerous pattern to fight against! For this reason, if I see a continuation of the uptrend above 2910, I WILL NOT REMAIN SHORT. At the moment, in intraday, I am working with the level 2913 Futures Points, to be always SHORT under it and FLAT above it. I can accept some little losses around it, but not a big loss!

Thank you for your attention.
