A part of that, there is no particular news. I said the Market was not going anywhere, and we would have seen Corn always around the same levels. This is what happened; the chart is self-explanatory. The last month and a half has been so boring, that it was hard to make any excellent trade with Corn.

Right now, I am expecting to see Corn, December Contract, around the level 361-362, where I am planning to close the SHORT position. It is just a little position because I have no big expectations about Corn. (I did open a SHORT position using 378 because there was a pattern of 37 points, please look at the chart – I am not cheating, I opened it sending the signal to the Daily Report Service, and I made it public with a Newsletter – I trade for real).

Symbol	Position	Quantity	Average Price	Last	Bid	Ask	Open P/L (Acct)	Open P/L / Qty (Acct)	Open P/L %	Total Cost (Acct)	Market Value (Acct)
SF19	Short	-1	888.25000	883 5/8	883 5/8	884	$225.00	$225.00	0.51%	$2,255.00	($44,187.50)
CZ18	Short	-1	372.00000	364	363 5/8	364	$400.00	$400.00	2.15%	$880.00	($18,200.00)

NOTE: The list is automatically sorted every minute. Last sort on 16/11/2018 at 18:19:29

I am not planning to open any LONG position, because Corn is always under 400, and this is not good for Corn. Maybe I can try it at the end of November, or beginning of December...

The December Contract is over in about two weeks, and we have to move to the March 2019 Contract:

Contract: March 2019

Exchange: CBOT, ECBOT

Symbol: CH19

Expiration Date: 14/03/2019

First Notice Day: 28/02/2019

Multiplier: 5000

As I said, I am not expecting anything important anymore, for the 2018. I can provide you a few levels I am monitoring. I look at 373 and 363, which are possible intermediate levels; they can work as a support/resistance. Then, we have 398-400, which is super important. All my attention is on this level, but we will not be able to use during 2018 anymore. If we see a Low around the end of November, or beginning of December, we can try to open a LONG position using the supports I mentioned above, because we should see a new positive swing then. However, as I said, I am not sure I am going to take this risk, because Corn is not the best Market to trade in the period of October-December, statistically.

With the Chart, here below, I try to explain what I meant in the comment.

In the previous Update, I showed you also long-term charts; please refer to them for the long-term levels during this never ending sideways pattern.

If you have any question, please do not hesitate to contact us.

This should be the last Update of the year. Very boring Corn, I know; I have nothing more to say because I think there is nothing exciting anymore, during 2018.

The 2019 Corn & Soybeans Bulletin should be ready by the end of November. We will be back to you soon.
